

DevOps Engineer

Job Overview

Devops engineer will be heavily involved in setup, management and monitoring of infrastructure, in automation, integration, code validation, and other systems-related tasks. He/She will be linking with various team members and clients across projects and producing documentation as his work progresses.

Responsibilities

- Coordinate and communicate with the various software engineering teams and with clients
- Ensuring that systems are safe and secure against cybersecurity threats
- Set up, manage, monitor VMware infrastructure
- Implement CI/CD processes using GitHub/GitLab to automate development process
- Strive for continuous improvement by building continuous integration, continuous development, and continuous delivery pipelines (CI/CD Pipeline)
- Review, verify, and validate the source code developed in the project to ensure best security practices are implemented
- Automate and improve the development and the release process
- Create the required infrastructure and development environments
- Stay curious and up to date with the latest industry trends in DevOps technologies
- Document all development steps

Requirements

- Computer Science or Computer Engineering degree
- Minimum 3 years of experience in a DevOps Engineer role
- Excellent verbal and written English skills
- Delivery oriented person and multi-tasking person